It is a matter of great pleasure to know that Chanakya Aerospace, Defence & Maritime Review is publishing its 500th issue on the occasion of Aero India 2015 Show. It is a remarkable achievement to be in the field of publication for 45 years, out of which 40 years in the monthly circulation of Aerospace & Defence Magazine providing updated information and creating awareness for the aerospace community. Chanakya Aerospace Defence & Maritime Review is India's leading and oldest Defence monthly, and has an international circulation covering all continents and subscribers in 63 countries worldwide. It has established an extensive readership base in Indian Defence Forces i.e. land, air and naval coast guard.

Being the first Civil Aviation & Defence magazine of India, it has attained many milestones, with a large readership of decision makers and technical expertise in the field of Civil & Military Aerospace and Aviation. Chanakya Aerospace efforts have been fruitful in 'Make in India' approach in the field of Aerospace, Aeronautics and Aviation, and has kept aloft the image of India in the comity of nations. It keeps all the professionals in Aerospace and other allied fields abreast with the latest developments in Civil Aviation, Airlines, Airport Infrastructure, Air Traffic Navigation, Aeronautical and Aviation related industries with its well researched surveys and analysis.

I congratulate the Publisher, Editors & Staff of Chanakya Aerospace on this historic occasion and hope that it will keep up the momentum of spearheading the growth and 'Make in India' approach, which is the theme of our modern India.

I wish all the success in their Special 500th Issue and all future milestones.
